

TOP 5 REASONS

SAN DIEGO STATE UNIVERSITY

College of Arts & Letters to Pursue a Master's Degree in Anthropology at SAN DIEGO STATE UNIVERSITY

1

ENGAGED, RESEARCH-ACTIVE FACULTY

Get involved in research and publish with well-known leaders in the industry. Faculty have been awarded research funding by federal agencies such as: NSF, USDA, NIH, and NEH, and by organizations like the National Geographic Society.

2

REAL-WORLD FOCUS

Learn to apply anthropological theories and methods to explore the human dimensions of global change and to solve contemporary challenges. Engage in hands-on learning opportunities with a research focus.

3

FIELDWORK OPPORTUNITIES

Learn through experience! SDSU Anthropology has seven dedicated laboratories to provide you with many local and international opportunities in sociocultural, biological, and archaeological anthropology, and associated specializations.

4

INTERSHIPS

Tailored internships with businesses, governmental and non-governmental organizations, museums, clinics, schools, the San Diego Zoo, and others are available to you.

5

SAN DIEGO LOCATION

Abundant opportunities for research and learning in San Diego, a vibrant coastal metropolis and international port along the U.S.-Mexico border. San Diego State University is a premier research institution.

At San Diego State University, you'll have an opportunity to push boundaries, network with like-minded individuals, and thrive in an environment where the professors care about your success. Find out why SDSU is the right choice for your anthropology M.A.

For more details, contact graduate advisor
Dr. Nicole Mathwich
nmathwich@sdsu.edu

OR VISIT

anthropology.sdsu.edu

CAL STATE APPLICATION DUE: DEC. 15
ANTHROPOLOGY M.A. APPLICATION DUE: JAN. 12